Notice.
Department of the Interior, United States Land Office, Salt Lake City, Utah, February 15th, 1904.
To whom it may concern:
Notice is hereby given that the State of Utah has filed in this office lists of lands, selected by the said state under section 12 of the Act of Congress approved July 16, 1894. The following tracts embraced in said lists, are in townships containing mineral claims, of record, viz: SW 1/4 Sec. 20, and SW 1/4 Sec. 25, T. 14 N., R. 2 E., and SW 1/4 Sec. 25, T. 13 N., R. 1 E., S. 1 Mer., embraced in lists No. 46, for the establishment and maintenance of a Deaf and Dumb Asylum.
Copies of said lists, so far as they relate to said tracts by subdivisions have been posted in a conspicuous place in this office, for the inspection by any person interested, and by the public generally.
During the sixty days next following the date of this notice, under departmental instructions of November 27, 1903 (25 L. D. 426), protests or contests against the claim of the state to any of the tracts or subdivisions hereinbefore described, on the ground that the same are more valuable for mineral than for agricultural purposes, will be received and noted for report to the General Land Office at Washington, D. C. Failure so to protest or contest within the time specified will be considered sufficient evidence of the non-mineral character of the said tracts, and the selection thereof, being otherwise free from objection, will be recommended for approval.

Atmosphere of the Planets.
The atmosphere of a world depends on its gravitation. Gases tend to diffuse into space, unless retained by adequate attraction. Our earth can hardly retain so light and mobile a gas as hydrogen; Mars may have difficulty in retaining the less mobile vapor of water; but the gravitation of the moon is too slight to retain any known gas, hence she has no atmosphere or water. Yet this is not sufficient reason for assuming the absence of life.

Custom of Japan.
In Japan the well to do have almost always in their houses one room called the "chamber of the inspiring view." Its essential is a beautiful view, but taste is catholic in Japan, and the delightful view may be a blossoming cherry tree, a glimpse of a river, a miniature garden or only the newly fallen snow. In this delightful country they get up parties to visit the maple trees in the glory of autumn color, or the fresh, untrodden snow, as in this country one gives theater parties and dinners.

Reptiles as Delicacies.
Reptiles are eaten with eagerness all over the world; neither want of beauty nor abundance of venom protects them from omnivorous man. Although they suggest to us by form and motion all that is false and unfair, hideous and horrid, even God's curse of the serpent does not shield it, and from the humble frog of the pond to the colossal crocodile of Egypt, they are all only so much food for man.

Centenarians in Africa.
The Fear of Death.
Could human life, argues M. Metchnikoff, be prolonged to its normal physiological period, humanity would be set free from the fear of death, which arises from a really unnatural curtailing of life. Death would appear as much a physiological function, as fitting and harmonious, as any other phase of the organism's existence; the desire of death would come in the ripeness of time as spontaneously as the desire of life in youth or maturity.

Sharks Reappear.
Ferocious sharks, which have not been seen in the Baltic for more than a century, have again appeared off the Danish and German coasts, and give the fishermen much trouble.

Hunter's Valuable Donkey.
A traveler in central Africa tells of a native hunter of the Wanderobo tribe who was the possessor of a most accomplished donkey, which, with an antelope's horns strapped to its head, its body covered with a skin or painted to resemble the animal its master intended to stalk that day, was the means of deluding many an unwary creature into falling a victim to the poisoned arrows of the hunter crouching behind his four-footed assistant.
Few Precious Stones from India.
India, so long renowned in history and tradition as the source of gems, produced in 1902 no diamonds and no precious stones, with the exception of considerable numbers of rubies mined in Upper Burma. The leading gem dealers in Paris and Amsterdam have agents at Mandalay who buy the rubies directly from the Shahs. The finest rubies go to Paris.
